

Instructions for the candidate:

"We are processing lots of invoices from different clients with many respective business partners per second. On those invoices, many individual items are listed. Currently, we get a random description of the transacted good or service from the LLM. So if we upload the same invoice three times, we will likely also receive three different versions of good/service descriptions. Ideally, we only want one version that is reproducible across invoices; If I upload three similar invoices, the same booking texts should be derived. Conceptualize and specify a solution for this problem. You are allowed to use any tool you want. You don't need to provide a fully functional prototype, just a well-rounded concept."

If we were to upload our invoice to our system three times:
